EC extends city's fire zone

By CHARLES PELTON

EL CERRITO —The extension of the city's high hazard fire zone was the hot topic at Monday night's city council meeting.

The Council's expansion of the area, which nearly doubles the size of the present high hazard fire zone from 600 to 1300 homes, requires residents to clear all flammable brush and grass either 30 feet from their homes or to their property lines, whichever comes first.

with citizens curious about the extension's effect.

Almost every seat in the council chambers was filled tain areas of extreme fire danger the Fire Department may require flammable vegetation to be cleared up to 100 feet from a structure.

The ordinance establishing the zone also requires residents to place screens on their chimneys and stovepipes. Also, the use of motorcycles and motorscooters is restricted on public land in the area.

Because the fire department's resources are limited, Barraza explained, residents will be responsible for clearing and removing their own debris. Mayor Jean Siri asked the city manager to look into the possibility of moving up the date of this fall's special refuse pickup to assist in the removal of waste.

Budget job open

Endersby leaves Albany post

ALBANY — The Albany City Council accepted the resignation of Finance Director Roy Endersby Monday night, and took the first steps in the search for a new director.

Endersby, who came to Albany almost five years ago from the city of Campbell, gave one month's notice. He is leaving to take the job as finance director of San Pablo.

Mayor Ruth Ganong, Vice Mayor Edward McManus, and Council members Henry Kruse and Robert E. Nichols voted to accept the resignation. William Johns was absent.

The Council voted unamimously to begin advertising in "Western Cities Magazine" and "Jobs," a public personnel newsletter, for applicants to fill the job, which pays from $28,000 to $32,000 a year.

The Council also agreed to meet with the McKinley Towers Neighborhood Council on Tuesday, Sept. 20, at the Gateview condominium complex. The McKinley Towers Neighborhood Council represents residents of the Gateview.

Two subjects of the September meeting will be parking — the McKinley Council proposes residents-only parking on Pierce Street during the week; and traffic — a 25 m.p.h. speed limit on Pierce Street and the widening of the street have been proposed by the Gateview residents.

The future of the Pierce Street I-80 freeway off-ramp, and a possible bus line from Gateview to Albany's business district will also be disucssed.

RUSD actually has more money

By BARBARA ERICKSON

Richmond Unified board members, flush with $4 million in additional funds from the state and other sources, now face the problem of where to spend their new riches.

After weeks of checking and rechecking the funding formulas of the new education bill, school officials said last week that the district budget gained $3.2 million from the state and another $800,000 from interest income, personnel changes, and an increase in the ending balance for this year.

The total for the 1983-84 year is now $65 million compared to $61 million for the past two years.

The panel agreed last Wednesday night to spend $552,000 on restoring the sixth period in the seventh and eighth grades next year, but they said other decisions will have to wait on contract negotiations.

The vote was 4-0 with Goy Fuller absent, but board president Katherine Lord said Fuller indicated earlier that he agreed with the action.

Board member Frank Calton said the panel needed to act quickly on the junior high sixth period so staff can begin to plan and hire teachers.

Last year the board cut the sixth period from the seventh, eighth, 11th and 12th grades in a series of cuts necessary to meet a $5 million deficit. Calton said that 11th and 12th grade students do not need to take physical education, so all high school grade levels offer the same number of solid courses.

"Also," he said, "it is the policy to let juniors or seniors take a class if the class is not filled, so there are ways of finessing that for students who really care."

Board member Eddis Harrison said

A visit to Nicaragua from an 'unlikely activist'

Margaret Loverde

An Albany teacher sees sadness in the land

By JIM GRODNIK

ALBANY — Margaret Loverde, a teacher at Vista School in Albany, doesn't fit the stereotype of an activist.

Now in her 50s, she lives in a small, neat, plant-filled home on Ventura Avenue, teaches first grade and has four children.

During the politically volatile '60s, when so many were drawn to political activism, Loverde had no interest in politics. She was in New York City, trying to establish a career as an actress.

Yet on July 5, Loverde and more than 150 other American church representatives and peace activists went to Nicaragua to protest the American government's policy in Central America.

Unlike many of those involved in the peace movement, Loverde didn't become politically active because of Vietnam. Involvement came from her membership in the Catholic Church, from the realization that her oldest son had reached draft age, and from a classroom aide who had been to Nicaragua.

"I told her I was against the draft, that I couldn't imagine my son going to the Middle East," said Loverde. "She said, 'he probably won't be going there, he'll be going to Central America' — and this was no radical talking."

She was also affected when Oscar Romero, a Catholic archbishop, was killed in El Salvador.

"He had written Carter asking him not to send more troops to El Salvador. I thought, my God, that's why he was killed," she said.

Loverde, who was born in Berkeley and had never before been out of the United States before, spent five days in Nicaragua, two of them in Jalapa, on the border between Nicaragua and Honduras, a border that has been under attack by U.S.-aided rebels in Honduras.

The group was organized by the Carolina Interfaith Task Force on Central America. Loverde received a last-minute invitation through the Commission on Social Justice Task Force on Latin America, which she had joined in the San Francisco Catholic Archdiocese.

She had 48 hours to decide if she should make the trip.

She called her 88-year old mother for advice. "She told me, 'of course you should go, this is what you've been working for all along.' "

Loverde, who has been divorced for 14 years, said she was writing report cards when the offer came. She then began thinking about making her will.

She expected danger on the trip. "Other people counted on the fact that the CIA would work to keep incidents down to avoid publicity. A lot of people were counting on that, but I wasn't."

The trip to Jalapa was made in five buses. The group joked that the middle bus was the safest. Two weeks before the Task Force arrived, two American journalists had been killed by a land mine in the border area. "We saw bridges that had been blown up, and foxholes in the fields," she said.

At Jalapa, which is 10 miles from the Honduran border, and 200 miles from Managua, the capital of Nicaragua, the peace group, which included the Rev. William Sloane Coffin, held a demonstration, joining hands with Nicaraguans, praying for peace, and criticizing U.S. policy in Central America.

The Task Force, which included people from 30 states, also met with U.S. Ambassador Anthony Quainton at a confrontational meeting in Managua. They denounced U.S. policy, charging the United States with responsibility for civilian deaths.

Teacher's visit to Nicaragua

Quainton responded by saying the Marxist Sandinista government supports leftists rebels in El Salvador.

Congress recently voted to stop covert aid to the anti-Sandanista forces.

Loverde, who has sons age 16, 20 and 23, and a daughter 19, said that conditions in Nicaragua were as she expected. She said the country is extremely poor.

The peace delegation, which was hosted by the Sandanista government, did not eat lavishly. Rice, beans and a fried non-sweet banana were served often. "A couple days we had fruit, and that was a big thing," said Loverde.

She said she met people from other countries, but no Russians or Cubans. The U.S. State Deparment says that those countries are supplying Nicaragua with arms.

"So much of what they (the Nicaraguan government) got was from Russia and Cuba," Loverde said, "but not military, (just) medical supplies and food."

Loverde's trip was paid for by contributions from St. Mary Magdalen Parish Parish in Berkeley, and by contributions from friends. Her 16-year-old son Emmett contributed $100, "but he's borrowing that back now," she said with a laugh.

Loverde expressed her political philosophy this way: "I can't feel that any war our government engaged in would be justified. Especially Nicaragua."

The trip left her with a sadness. "The people (she met in Nicaragua) thought our being there would make all this go away. They were expecting some magic from our visit."

In her free time, Loverde now speaks about her trip to church groups. "With four kids and a job, I have a full life. Hobbies belong to someone who doesn't — Central America's my hobby."

Even though the city cannot clear private property, the fire department, if requested, will send someone to inspect property and explain what constitutes flammable vegetation. Most garden plants and shrubs are unaffected by the ordinance.

"We're not trying to impose new government," Council member James E. Allen, Jr. said. "But we are trying to impose (fire) awareness ... we're attempting to use self-help."

Barraza also assured those attending the meeting that the high hazard designation will not affect insurance costs in El Cerrito. According to both an insurance rating bureau in San Francisco and several local agents, he said, the city's relatively low rating will remain the same.

"This is not the identification of a new hazard," Barraza said, "but the establishment of a zone to alleviate a new danger."

Last winter's unusually heavy rains and the subsequent heavy growth caused city officials to become alarmed at the high risk of fires. The rough, hilly terrain in much of the high fire zone contributes to the danger.

With the assistance of the California Conservation Corps, some of the public land in the area has been cleared either manually or with controlled burning. More public land is due to be tackled in coming weekends with the assistance of the county sheriff's department.

Barraza would like to see the city become even more aggressive in its fire prevention program. He talked about a possible partnership with UC-Berkeley's Department of Forestry to help control unchecked vegetation growth in public areas.

The expanded area is bounded by Arlington Boulevard on the east, Moeser Lane on the south, Navellier, Ganges and Tamalpais on the west and Cutting Boulevard on the north.

Conceding that enforcement of the ordinance may be difficult, Barraza explained that non-compliance could lead to an infraction. "I'm hoping for full community cooperation," he said.

In other business, the council was split in its support for seven State Assembly resolutions known as the "Peace Package," authored by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos.

Mayor Siri and Councilman Allen supported the resolutions. Councilmembers Howard P. Abelson and Margaret Collins were opposed.

"My feeling is that I really don't want to get involved in strategies with the MX and Pershing II missiles," Abelson said. "I think we should stay with city (issues.)"

The council also approved new wage and benefit packets for city employees. For most employees the new agreements represent a five percent increase in salaries and benefits.

Ionia Marie White, an unsuccessful candidate for the Richmond Unified board two years ago, is the latest contender to file for the Nov. 8 race.

White, who once worked for the district, joins George Cantu and current board president Katherine Lord to make three so far running for two seats. Cantu and Lord are running as a team.

Veteran school board member Goy Fuller announced last month that he is not seeking re-election. His decision leaves one incumbent in the race.

Another local activist, Billie Alexander, has filed for the County School Board against incumbent Ned Clyde. The two will vie for the Area One seat which represents Richmond, El Cerrito and Kensington.

And Alexander's wife, Barbara, who announced last week that she was running for the Richmond Unified board with former administrator Don Dyer, said Friday that she is now not likely to run.

"A black candidate has already filed," she said, referring to White. "I have no desire to split the black vote."

District restores program

she would prefer to restore the sixth period at the 11th and 12th grades but voted with the majority "in a spirit of cooperation."

Earlier this year the district anticipated a $2 million deficit, based on the governor's proposed budget, and the tentative budget adopted June 22 includes cuts made to meet this shortfall.

The board will now vote on restoring program reductions made over the past two years, but, officials said, they will take no action until salary negotiations have made some progress.

Unions representing teachers, clerical workers and other employees have been holding off on negotiations until the district's funding was known. Two year contracts for the employees expired at the end of June.

Woody Snodgrass, the district's chief negotiator, said he has meetings scheduled with Public Employees' Union Local One and the California School Employees Association. He plans to set up talks soon with the United Teachers of Richmond.

Wednesday night Ernie Ciarrocchi, UTR director, said the board should not vote on any budget restorations until the impact of program changes was discussed in negotiations. Sandra Falk of Local One also said the schools were required by law to discuss prospective changes.

But Snodgrass said an attorney for the schools advised him that the action was legal. The board then voted on restoring the sixth period in junior high school.

Ciarrocchi also said the district needs to take a hard look at the new education law, which may require reforms which will cost the schools funding in coming years.

Cops subdue angry woman

EL CERRITO — Police had to use tear gas on a 37-year-old Menlo Park woman who reportedly had struck a male friend with a telephone and then kicked two officers who responded to the victim's phone call for help.

Earlier this week, police said the man was in the process of having a citizen's arrest made on Florence C. Huang for refusing to leave his home in the 1200 block of Cabrillo St. when she allegedly hit him with the telephone and then kicked officers Carl Perez and Richard Robben in the groin.

After subduing the woman with tear gas, the officers handcuffed her and took her to the police station, where she was booked for investigation of two counts of battery on a police officer, trespassing and assault with intent to commit bodily harm.

The woman was released on bail pending investigation of the charges.

School sets fall classes

At the Kensington Hilltop Elementary School there will be programs of sports, arts, and computers from 2-6 p.m.when school resumes Sept. 7.

For more information call 527-9873.

On Veterans' Day, the day after Thanksgiving, Lincoln's Birthday and Martin Luther King's Birthday, the clubs will be open from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. at no extra charge to parents.

The Y nationwide, Lau said, is taking more interest in after-school day care and getting away from the heavy emphasis on athletics. The Richmond Unified programs will use curriculum put out by the national organization.

Nutrition, crafts, music, team sports and activities like the "family book" (a kind of journal of each child's family), will be offered during a typical day in the clubs. There will be a health concept for each week ("taking your pulse," for one example).

Students will also have a snacks during the afternoon. Kindergarten children will bring their own lunches.

Lau plans on sending out a monthly newsletter to alert parents about coming events and holidays.

For now the Latch-Key Clubs have to be self-supporting, but Lau said, "If we get this off the ground, we may look to a large foundation" to provide a subsidy.

During the school year he plans to talk to PTA groups to coordinate surveys for other schools.

The Y is mailing information on the program to parents in the three schools. For more information, call the Y at 233-7070.

Classes in Lamaze set at Hilltop Center

Lamaze method childbirth classes are now being offered through the Planned Parenthood Hilltop Center. The next series of six weekly classes for women due in late September and October beings Friday, Aug. 19.

The two-and-a-half hour classes cover information about pregnancy, labor, birth and the post-partum period, in addition to the Lamaze method of relaxation, concentration and controlled breathing to facilitate easier childbirth.

Classes are limited to five couples. Women can go through the training alone, but the presence of a labor coach, the child's father or another person, makes the training and its use during labor more effective

The course is taught by Laura Stephens, an Aspo certified childbirth educator.

Tuition is $42, but a sliding fee scale is available.

These classes will be offered regularly, with a new series starting every two months. Class reservations may be made as early as the fourth month of pregnancy or up to the anticipated due date.

For information or reservations, phone the Hilltop Planned Parenthood Center, 222-5290. The Center is located at 2050 Hilltop Mall Road, across from the shopping center.

Living a writer's dream

Florence Lewis keeps busy with writing and teaching

By BETH MENDE

EL CERRITO — Florence Lewis wrote her first novel when she was 13 years old. It was the story of a girl her age who had everything she didn't have — money, love and happiness.

Lewis' mother threw the book away the first chance she had, Lewis recalled, believing as many mothers in the 30's did, that young girls should be encouraged to marry, not to engage in other, trivial pursuits.

Undeterred, Lewis — known as Flossie — continued with her writing. It wasn't until the 1960's, however, more than 15 years after she moved from New York to Califonia to pursue a teaching career, that she began to take her craft more seriously.

In addition to fiction, she said, she began to write about education and do literary criticism. In 1966, she published her first piece in The English Journal, a professional teaching magazine.

Lewis has published regularly since then. Who Wants To Be Lillian Plotnick's Mother?, published in 1981 by Hallard Press in New Zealand, is her latest book.

The book, a collection of short stories which also includes the work of New Zealand writer Bernard Gadd, captures the problems, unrest and rebellious nature of the 60's and 70's, Lewis said. Gadd's stories view the turbulent decade from a youngster's point of view, she said, while her own stories take an adult's perspctive.

Lewis met Gadd while visiting New Zealand with a group of American educators. It was Gadd who suggested several years later that they collaborate.

The collection is available at Cody's Bookstore in Berkeley and Charing Cross Bookstore in San Francisco.

Who Wants To Be Lillian Plotnick's Mother? the short story after which the collection was named, is about a mother who is at odds with her daughter. The daughter is a well-known actress who thinks nothing of performing in the nude.

The daughter's sexual rebellion and recklessness, Lewis said, frightens and angers the mother, who is in her own way rebelling against the constraints of her generation.

Who Wants To Be Lillian Plotnick's Mother? is just one of the several books Lewis has written. At present, she said, she has three novels waiting to find publishers and a juvenile book in the works.

Her main interest at present, however, is in publishing her collection of essays on writer George Orwell, best known for his novel 1984. Lewis's collection is called The Involuntary Conversion of a 727.

Lewis, now on leave from the San Francisco Unified School District, where she has taught high school English since 1951, said Orwell's writings have had a tremendous immpact on her writing and teaching.

In 1961, Lewis read Orwell's Politics and the English Language, which, she said, represented a turning point in her life. "You might say that was my conversion."

Orwell, she said, will hook his reader by recounting an interesting story, and then, by surprise, slip in the point he is trying to make. His approach can and should serve as a model for how students are taught, Lewis said.

The brighter students are, the less satisfied they are with dry, straightforward facts, she said. Students instead want the reason and wisdom behind what they are learning; they want to know the "how and why."

Reading Orwell, Lewis said, provides students with the how and why of what they are reading and can serve as a model for how subjects other than English should be taught.

The Involuntary Conversion of a 727, Lewis said, examines Orwell's politics and his use of the English language. The essays are designed to assist teachers in helping their students better understand 1984.

Lewis is finishing up her Ph.D. in English and education at UC-Berkeley. Of all she has written, Lewis' Orwell essays are her real passion.

"Anyone can write fiction," she said, "but not everyone can teach 1984."

Supervisors consider campaign finances

By DON McCORMACK

Contra Costa supervisors were urged last week to leave campaign finance laws alone and, alternately, to toughen them to lessen the influence of local business interests.

"Huge campaign expenditures generated by special interest funding has lessened the value of individual citizen participation and has thereby contributed to disillusionment and voter apathy," wrote a special committee in a report to supervisors.

The committee, in its majority report, asked supervisors to pass an ordinance disqualifying a supervisor from voting on any matter that would benefit a person who has donated more than $250 to that supervisor.

"It won't work," said Palmer Madden, a lawyer who served on the committee but disagreed with the majority report. He said the change would encourage the formation of independent committees — groups that would raise money for candidates but act completely separate from the candidates.

This would also make politicians less accountable to the public, Madden argued.

Colin Coffey, representing the committee majority, countered that if independent committees violated the spirit of the ordinance "they would call attention to themselves and this would mitigate the effectiveness of this kind of funneling."

The changes would also require candidates to identify contributors of $50 or more, instead of the present $100. In addition, a committee would be set up to assure compliance.

Robert Schroder, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, declared, "I personally feel we are being discriminated against."

The restrictions would apply only to supervisors. Proponents, however, argued that city councils and other public bodies would be forced to follow the county's example.

Supervisor Nancy Fahden supports the ordinance. She said she would toughen it further by counting all contributions toward the $250 cutoff. A business interest, as the proposal is written now, can donate $250 to each supervisor.

Developers and realty agents, who put up much of the money for local elections, have generally shunned Fahden and she has not solicited their contributions. Supervisor Tom Powers of Richmond has accepted donations from developers.

Powers said he hadn't made up his mind on the proposed reforms but suggested some changes would be made in the campaign finance reporting.

People are concerned about the cost of political campaigns and the appearance of excessive outside influence, he said.

"I never get any pressure that I can't handle," Powers continued. The supervisor said that what impressed him were letters from constituents and testimony before the board.

After 2½ hours of testimony, supervisors continued discussion to Aug. 30.

Like landslides or fire?

Preventing one may encourage the other

By JIM GRODNIK

EL CERRITO — The dangers of fire and landslide in the East Bay hills are connected like Siamese twins — one affects the other..

With this is in mind, the East Bay Regional Park District has recommended a three-year landslide study of the Wildcat Canyon area, east of El Cerrito.

The study, proposed by professors Luna Leopold and William Dietrich from the UC-Berkeley geology and geography department, would determine whether thinning out vegetation that separates parkland from houses, a benefit in controlling wildfires, would increase the landslide threat to homes overlooking the Canyon.

Richard Aronson, fire chief of the EBRPD, said, that although there is a current fire danger, he favors a landslide study before initiating a program of cutting back the brush.

"Personally I'm pushing for the study. I think it's only a one-year wait while we experience a winter," he said.

A similar program of cutting back brush to avoid the threat of fire, called a fuel break by the fire department, has been in effect since 1973 in portions of the area extending from Grizzly Peak Boulevard in Berkeley to the Chabot Municipal Golf Course in Oakland.

This fuel break was established in 1973, when a freeze killed many eucalyptus trees. The dead trees created a severe fire hazard and had to be cut back.

The fuel break currently in effect in that area involves thinning 50 to 75 percent of the brush around trees, and limbing trees 10-15 feet off the ground. According to Aronson, this eliminates tree-to-tree spreading of a fire.

"The potential for danger is greater from fire than from a landslide," said Aronson. "A slide could cause the loss of 1 or 2 houses, a fire could cause the loss of 40."

The vegetation that is so dangerous when there is a fire ironically may also be necessary to hold the soil on the hillsides in areas where there are landslides. The study will determine the pluses and minuses of a fuel break in the Wildcat Canyon area.

Mary Jefferds, who represents the EBPRD district that includes El Cerrito and Kensington, said the last extended rain probably triggered a number of slides that have been lying dormant.

She favors asking local governments to help pay for the study. Much of the study area is in El Cerrito, a small amount is in Richmond, and the rest is in Kensington and other parts of unincorporated Contra Costa County.

"To me there's a parallel between landslides and fire prevention, and the cities share in both problems," she said.

Cost of the first year of the study is estimated at $45,413, according to the EBRPD. The study would involve making maps of landslide areas, identifying potential problem areas and studying drainage. Instruments would be used to measure earth movement.

Ron Creagh, El Cerrito city manager, said he met recently in an informational session with the Park District. He said the study may mean that El Cerrito proceeds "a little slower" on fire prevention programs. Creagh also said the city intends to cooperate with the study, but no financial arrangements have yet been made made.

The district staff was also presented wih a second year proposal estimated at costing $74,258 and a third year proposal of $108,314. Only the first year allocation was requested.

Director John O'Donnell suggested that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration might provide aerial photographs of the area in an effort to save money on the study.

Saving the pension system

By RUTH GANONG
Mayor

ALBANY — The recent actuarial study of the Albany pension fund surprised almost everyone. The information was contrary to what had been expected by people versed in our pension problems. In this article, I discuss some of the "surprises" and outline our plans to deal with the problem.

At the July 5th meeting of the City Council, William Hall of the actuarial firm of Milliman & Robertson presented an updated study showing the relationship of salaries, investment income and property values — all crucial elements in making a decision about future contributions. Mr. Smith stated categorically that there was no point in considering a two percent cap on *all*benefits of the closed system because of the legalities involved. He said he was convinced that the courts would never uphold such an action, even if it were a mandate of the people.

The major surprise in Mr. Smith's report was that if we had a tax of 0.0883 percent of assessed value, the closed pension system would be solvent. We, on the City Council, were expecting a much higher tax levy.

Mr. Smith also presented data to suggested that our present closed system has been in operation for such a long time that changing the City Charter to put a two percent cap even on future accrued earnings of those currently employed would have an insignificant effect on the total situation of the fund. Such a change would amount to something in the area of $6 per household per year.

Mr. Smith made a strong case for the city to consider the two pension funds interlinked; the one "closed" fund for those safety employees hired before 1971; and the PERS (Public Employees Retirement System) run by the state. He contended that the benefits of both plans are paid for by both public and employee money, and that the benefits are based on salaries and are, therefore, interdependent. Furthermore, there has been a recent ruling which says that cities that have voter-approved pension plans (and all of our Albany plans are voter-approved) may not use the Proposition 13 allotment to support the plans, but must use some other allocation either out of the general fund, or as an override ad valorem tax. He suggested that we could adequately fund both plans by levying a 0.15 percent tax.

Mr. Smith cautioned that the funds would have to be carefully monitored, and that a reveiw would be needed every three years for the differential rate of change of salaries, investment income and property values which are crucial to management of the fund. However, he stated that, from a long term actuarial and historical perspective, the rate of change of interest income, salaries and property value remain fairly constant, and that short term variations seem to flatten out over a long period of time. He cautioned that we must not count on continuting to receive the very advantageous interest income differential that we have been receiving in the last two years.

Mr. Smith warned that the closed system funding should be designed in such a way that there will be no excess money at the end, in order to avoid the "Last Man Club" problem that a few plans in Southern California have had. In those plans, the last survivor has felt entitled to the remaining monies left in the plan and there has been a nasty scramble of the relatives of the last few survivors for the money. He said this problem can be easily taken care of by designing the system in such a way that the last few survivors would be transferred to the PERS plan, or that the last survivors would be paid for from the General Fund, since payments at that point would be relatively small.

I must confess that it was a freshing respite to me to think about the end of the plan, and the possibility that there might be too much money just at the end. I must say that I have felt the heavy burden of the $77 million obligation of the closed plan an almost impossible weight of responsibility.

The strongest impression that this new data gave me was that this is a very long-term problem and requires long-range planning and implementation; and that the "frightening" number of dollars involved can be dealt with on a long-term basis. We heard that if we left the principal untouched that it would grow in 20 years to fulfill the obligation. We also heard that orderly planning of our obligations will alleviate the problem of the fund and not leave the fund of the city bankrupt.

On July 18, the actuarial study provided one additional piece of information — a "spread sheet" showing year-by-year cash flow of the various elements: investments, salaries and property values. We are now asking the Pension Advisory Committee and the Pension Board to make recommendations to the City Council. We will hold a public hearing on Aug. 22, to set a tax rate by Sept. 1 for the tax year 1983-1984.

No one wanted to have to levy an ad valorem tax for pensions. However, before Proposition 13, we had a tradition of paying for the obligation by a tax override of the General Fund, raising and lowering it as necessary. Reluctantly, we will have to discuss how to raise the money for this obligation and make a decision by Sept. 1 about funding the Pension for next year.

Solano Stroll plans subject of meeting

Solano Stroll subscribers and would-be subscribers should attend a general membership meeting of the Solano Avenue Association on Thursday, Aug. 18 at 6 p.m. at Bank of Tomo Bank.

Topics to be discussed include the plans for the 1983 Solano Stroll, slated for Sunday, Sept. 25, from 1 to 5 p.m. Food on the agenda is a discussion of group insurance.

A workshop will be held on Tuesday, Aug. 30, at 6 p.m. at Manitomo Bank. Special activities chair Joan Hangarter has arranged a short presentation by several small business owners, who will discuss their Stroll promotions. A round-table discussion will follow.

Local non-profit groups may participate in the Stroll; call James Forbes at 524-3984 for information and an application. Deadline for Stroll subscriptions is Aug. 31; call Carol Fuller, treasurer, at 526-0151.

Open forum

Readers of the world, unite! write

The Open Forum accepts essays on topics of general or community interest. Send submissions of no more than 750 words — three typed, double-spaced pages — to Editor, Times Journal, 1247 Solano Ave., Albany 94706. This week's column is from Stephen Sikora.

Reading alone is fine; I'm not knocking that. Some of the best best years and highest times of my life have been spent in front of printed pages. As Ringo says in the Beatles' first movie, "You can learn from bukes."

But reading alone is just that — a solitary act. For a moment or two you may feel that some writer has made a direct hit on your heart and consciousness. In the highest of times, the whole world opens out from the words on a page and wraps you up in it. But not often, and not for long.

For instance, try writing back to some writers (if they're still alive) who did the gift-wrapping for you. If you're very lucky you might get a few lines back from their very own typewriters: "Glad you liked my book, wonderful to hear from one's readers, yours truly." Less lucky readers will get a form-letter reply telling of other books by the same author which you will no doubt want to buy, and how his time is too filled up for personal correspondence but you might catch him two weeks from now on Johnny Carson.

And then most of us will get back only silence. I know. I've tried. Some essay in The Nation, New republic, or (heaven help me!) The American Spectator starts me thinking and raises a bunch of questions. I want answers, I want discussion, I want to know just what I think. But what I get is maybe a pat on the back (on lucky days) and most often only silence. A silence that tells me, "You're just a dumb reader, boy—dumb, (get it?), a voiceless consumer whose job is to sit there and lap up the golden words of us busy professional writers. We don't have time for the likes of you. We talk; you listen."

Getting mad may be dumb, too, I guess. In a highly complex world like ours, there is bound to be a lot of specialization. Everybody does one job and nothing else. A few specialized intellectuals do all the writing, and the rest of us only read. Farmers cuts rates on auto insurance for drivers between 30 and 60

We have rates 30% under standard rates for drivers between the ages of 30 and 60.

There's a good reason for this. Farmers knows that these drivers tend to be safer and more careful on the highway.

You're the drivers who have fewer accidents.

That's why Farmers created our 30/60 package auto policy. If you qualify, you could save substantially on your premiums.

Farmers Insurance Group is working constantly to keep the costs of insurance down, and the amount of protection up. And this 30/60 package auto policy is one way we do it. Why not call me?

Pot luck with Olga Bier

Best and wurst of Germany

Wurst — or sausage — is one of Germany's staple foods. There seems to be an infinite variety, containing pork, beef, veal, liver, tongue and blood — or in combination. I found my favorite to be the colored bratwurst, made of veal.

One platter I had contained two bratwurst, a mound of red carrots julienne, and snowy white potato salad flecked with minced parsley. A modest dish, to be sure, but welcome after a morning of castle touring.

As I have often said, the German way of eating a dinner or any sausage on a bun is to use the smallest possible, perhaps a soft one the size of a parker house roll. Place the longest grilled sausage you can find across it and fold it by the bun in the middle. Commence eating by way down each end of the meat, dipping in mustard or ketchup as you please, and end with two smacking good bites on the bun in the middle. Enough of these doughy Teutonic mounds of bread. Let's get down to serious eating.

A solid cuisine

German fare is sober, hearty and quite satisfying. The platters do not feature seven peas arranged in a fan and chocolate pasta as some culinary trends deem fashionable today. Native German food is savory and substantial, a wonderful cuisine for those of us who love to eat.

Of course, delicious continental menus were available in the more expensive restaurants, but I enjoyed the neighborhood spots so much.

It was a battle each time I opened a menu card to order. Should I try something new or ask for a favorite to see what variations might be forthcoming? Needless to say, the members of our party were instructed not to duplicate any dish so that we might taste as many as possible.

Even when we ordered the popular mixed grill for two or four, the varieties of food on the platter were more than enough to satisfy the different palates.

Served on a turkey-sized platter and set on a heated metal sheet, one typical mixed grill had small beef steaks, pork chops and veal cutlets arranged in the center on a bed of the ever-present French fries. Standing upright in the meat were skewers with cubes of pork and bacon and other skewers of pineapple chunks and cherries. Around the edge of the platter were colorful mounds of shredded red and white cabbage, fluffy rice, julienne carrots, soft butter lettuce, tomatoes, and crisp salted rounds of cucumber. When it comes to eating, the Germans don't fool around.

Dumpling named Spatzle

Spatzle are made with an egg noodle dough that is rolled and cut as it is scraped off the board into boiling water. They are tiny little dumplings about the size of our macaroni salad pasta and are served whenever there is a good gravy or juicy stew with lots of sauce to mop up.

Spatzle appears on all menus in Wurttenberg, which includes the seven Swabian provinces of Bavaria we visited first. My question to all the waiters was uniformly answered in mixed horror and indignation — "Of course our chef makes his own spatzle!"

If you have the time and inclination, they are not difficult to make. Do try them as an alternative to rice or noodles with your next dinner when you are serving a roast or stew. They will add an international air and, or course, expand your gastronomical horizon and perhaps even your waistline.

Spatzle

In a bowl put 3 c. all-purpose flour and ½ t. salt. Mix and make a well in the center. Combine 2 eggs and 1 c. water and beat well. Pour into the well in the middle of the flour and work to form a soft dough. (Use more flour or more water as you wish — the dough should be smooth and soft.)

Divide the dough in half and let rest a few moments. Then, pat or roll out quite thinly. Cut into strips and then holding a small board (one of the little bread boards with a handle works well) with the strips on it, sliver the dough off right into a kettle of boiling salted water. Simmer gently for 5 minutes or so until the tidbits rise. Lift out with a slotted spoon to a warmed bowl and toss with melted butter.

Keep cooking and adding the slivers in batches until all the dough is used. Salt is all that's needed if you can resist "going Italian" and adding cheese.

Popular snack or dessert

As in almost any country with refrigeration, ice cream is a standard favorite. I found the flavors not unlike ours and the quality high. The menu cards featuring ice cream in all the places I indulged had beautiful color pictures of each dish and mouthwatering descriptions, making a choice quite difficult. The presentations were curiously similar. On a service plate with a small napkin stood a stemmed goblet. Into the bottom went fruit, liqueur such as Grand Marnier or Kirsh, large balls of the ice cream, a huge swirl of unsweetened thick whipped cream speared with a tiny rolled sugar cookie, and a brightly colored little Japanese paper parasol. As I said, those Germans don't fool around.

Luncheon ends club's season

"Fashion Spree '83" is title of the Berkeley City Club's final terrace luncheon of the summer season. It will be held Wednesday, Aug. 17 at the Berkeley clubhouse on Durant Avenue.

The luncheon and show for club members (who come from El Cerrito, Kensington, Berkeley and Oakland), and their guests is one of the most popular events of the year according to chairwoman Viva Liner.

Fashions will be presented by Sather Gate Apparal and Dahlia, the latter featuring Asian and island designs.

A social hour is scheduled at 11:30 a.m., a buffet luncheon at 12:30 followed by the fashion show in the auditorum.

Decorations in fall colors will have an oriental theme, including Sake wine in bottles and casks from Numano Sake Company, courtesy of Kurt Rocca Jr.

Gas station loses $150

EL CERRITO — The Beacon Service Station at 6009 Potrero Ave. was robbed of $150 on Aug. 9.

According to police, the station's lone attendant was approached at 7:35 a.m. by two men with knit caps pulled over their faces. One of them accosted the attendant with a knife or dagger, demanding money from the cash drawer.

After receiving the money, the bandits fled on foot to a residential area west of the freeway, police said.

Down Syndrome help offered to parents

Learning the new baby has Down Syndrome can be devastating news for new parents. And raising that child, who will face developmental and medical problems throughout life, is certainly not an easy task.

To meet the special needs of these children and their families, a new Down Syndrome Clinic has been implemented at Children's Hospital Medical Center through its Child Development Center. It is the only clinic of its kind in northern California.

A common cause of mental retardation, Down Syndrome occurs about once in every 600 births. Children with Down Syndrome have an increased incidence of medical disorders of certain types. In addition, they may display common psychological characteristics.

The focus of the clinic is to monitor and intervene at critical times in the life of the Down Syndrome child and adolescent. Medical services coordinated through the clinic include audiology, ophthalmology, neurology, dental, endocrinology, cardiology and orthopedics.

Family support is an important part of the clinic services. Staff members work closely with parents to help them manage the complex issues of care, as well as dealing with family stress, effects on siblings, advocacy for the Down Syndrome child and anticipatory guidance.

Educational services include infant programs, through the Parent-Infant Project at Children's Hospital, psychological testing and school planning. Nutritional services for obesity and failure to thrive are also included in the program.

The clinic is held every Friday morning, from 9 a.m. to noon. Frequency of visits is individualized. However, for a child under three years of age, a biannual visit is recommened. Medical issues can be coordinated through a family's local physician.

For more information, call the Child Development Center at 428-3351.

Legal secretaries plan training class

Alameda County Legal Secretaries Association will ent its 21st annual 11-week training course for beginning prospective legal secretaries commencing Sept. 17. Classes will be held on Saturday mornings from 9 a.m. to on at St. John's Catholic School, 270 East Lewelling levard, San Lorenzo.

Subjects to be covered include general civil pleadings, bate, domestic relations, corporate and non-court docu- nts, general office procedures, and hints on job hunting for beginner. A certificate of completion will be given.

The enrollment fee is $70, which includes all supplies and erials. For information on enrollment, call Judy Choate 35-8001 during business hours.

Any Loan Buys You a House.

Before you buy your house, you look over the features carefully. Well, it's a good idea to do the same with your mortgage loan. Because with most loans, about all you can do is pay them off. If you need more money later, you must reapply and requalify for a second mortgage or a new first.

Imperial's Tomorrow Mortgage℠ Buys You a Home.

Imperial's innovative new loan is a first that works as a second. It allows you to qualify today, then borrow again tomorrow at the prevailing Tomorrow Mortgage℠ rate. With very little paperwork. And very few questions. With this additional advance feature, you can refinish your house, pay for a college education. Or even go on a much needed vacation.

Plus the Tomorrow Mortgage℠ provides an interest cap over the life of your loan, making it even easier to afford all the extras you want. So look over Imperial's Tomorrow Mortgage℠ and see if it doesn't check out better. Then take out the loan that helps you turn your house into a home.

1 Feature by feature, we stack up better.
- Additional advances
- Up to 40 year amortization
- Interest cap over the life of the loan
- Assumable
- No prepayment penalty
- Competitive rate

2 We let you pick your payment plan.
- ONE YEAR ADJUSTABLE PLAN Your interest rate changes once per year, not monthly, quarterly or semi-annually as with most institutions.
- FIVE YEAR ADJUSTABLE PLAN Your interest rate will only change once in over 9 years.

3 Plus, we added free interest checking.
- With our free Checking Plus Interest Account, you have no minimum balance and no monthly service charges.
- A free ATM Card allows you to access your money from a network of Imperial Convenience Centers℠ throughout California.

4 Call 1-800-C.H.E.K N.O.W. (1-800-243-5669)
- Our loan representatives are on the line from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday to tell you how and where you can apply for the Tomorrow Mortgage℠.
- Don't forget to ask about our variety of savings plans.

Bates: Get university out of the nuclear arms ra

By TOM BATES

In November, 1982, the voters of California passed Proposition 12, the Nuclear Freeze Initiative, and took a strong stand against the insanity of our nation's nuclear arms race. In an effort to continue this momentum against the powerful nuclear industry, I introduced Assembly Concurrent Resolution 54.

ACR 54 is a significant step because it is the first legislative attempt to address the relationship between the University of California and the Lawrence Livermore and Los Alamos National Weapons Laboratories. These laboratories are administered under a management contract by the University of California. ACR 54 asks the Regents of the University to openly and publicly investigate conversion of the laboratories to peacetime uses and research, and to report their findings to the Legislature within one year.

Nuclear weapons technology has become increasingly sophisticated and complex, and with sophistication has come secrecy. The Federal Department of Energy requires all weapons research to remain strictly classified, and therefore unavailable to the public. This policy runs directly contrary to a basic principle of the University of California — the free and open pursuit of knowledge and research. The country's greatest public educational institution has thus become a warehouse for secrecy and highly destructive policies.

Furthermore, U.C.'s "Management" contract with the laboratories does litle more than provide a benevolent landlord. The University of California commits a disservice to the people of this state and nation by playing a silent partner in this arrangement and lending a mantle of legitimacy to the nuclear arms race.

ACR 54 has successfully passed the Assembly Education Committee and the Assembly Ways and Means Committee. However, on July 14th, it suffered what we hope is only a temporary setback, when it failed passage in the Assembly floor on a 35-35 vote. Forty-one votes are needed for passage, but reconsideration was granted since 10 Democrats wee absent or not voting. ACR 54 will be heard again on the Assembly floor later in August.

ACR 54 needs only 6 additional votes to pa sembly, but still faces a difficult fight. It is a co issue, which has become more partisan as it h through the Legislature. However, the suppor ceived from concerned groups and individuals a California has been very encouraging to me. Th roots lobbying efforts have been effective, and tinue if we are to see this legialation pass. For on where to direct letters and phone calls in ACR 54, please contact my office.

roject unites youngsters, elderly patients

ween youngsters and residents of an Albany rehabil-ation hospital have been learning more about each ner this summer, thanks to a program sponsored by ild care information and referral service.

program, entitled Project JOY, or Joining Older ger, includes a group of children ages 1 to 11 and nvalescent patients at Alta Bates Rehabilitation in Albany. The youngsters and elderly patients ten together each Tuesday afternoon this summer ntinue to do so through next week.

ram participants have engaged in several activities They have planted California poppies, worked on t-projects, and sung, danced and told stories to-recent visit, the patients and children played with brought from the local SPCA.

children also have learned more about the physi-cal therapy rehabilitating patients undergo and how the hospital operates.

They have also been involved in what the program's organizers call an "aging awareness curriculum" that includes films, journal writing and interviews designed to educate the children on how older people live.

The ongoing JOY program serves Albany, Berkeley and Oakland. During the school year it is active in recruiting seniors to visit local elementary school classrooms to share their past and present experiences, tutor or share a special interest or talent.

The program is sponsored by BANANAS, Inc., a child care information and referral service based in Oakland. Project JOY is funded by the Luke Hancock Foundation of Palo Alto.

Professional baseball scouts: what are they looking for?

By CONRAD STRASHEIM

Dick Lee was grousing about professional baseball scouts at Cerrito Vista Park in El Cerrito recently between innings of a semi-pro baseball game he was umpiring.

"I don't know what they're looking for nowadays," said Lee, who asked one major league representative directly when his son Todd was passed over in the recent summer draft.

"He told me they want kids who can run and throw. They can teach 'em how to hit. I said 'Yeah you can. That's why there's only 20 guys in the bigs today batting over .300. Them that can teach 'em to hit can't teach 'em to hit."

His son Todd Lee of Pinole was not offered a professional contract after a super season at San Francisco State, while teammate Anthony Jones was signed off the Gator roster with much less impressive stats. The senior Lee was disappointed his son did not get an opportunity to play for pay, when other, inferior hitters did.

It's getting to be a universal complaint, as baseball scouts become more and more conservative and take less chances on those intangibles that have always been integral to the diamond sport. Scouts now come to games carrying stopwatches with their clipboards and notebooks.

Radar guns are also more in evidence, as the summer sport gets more like football, where sprint times are essential to consideration. Scouts want to be able to point to recorded times, be they sprint fractions on the basepaths or miles per hour on a fastball. But it makes for a production line of clones instead of a wide sampling of diverse athletes who can contribute varied skills.

What kind of clock can detect baseball sense or other inner traits of value, like heart and come-through characteristics in clutch situations? And the most measurable skill of all in baseball should be batting. There is an established mathematical system that reveals whether an individual can hit.

Stats can even show if a certain player hits as well, or better, with runners in scoring position. Players can also be charted to see if they use the whole field, hit behind the runner or possess power at the plate.

Ted Williams said batting a baseball was the single most difficult endeavor in sports. If that's so why aren't scouts signing players who can hit instead of run? As Dick Lee said, "You can't steal first base."

What are they afraid of? Insiders indicate scouts cross-check each other to make sure everybody likes the same prospects. That way no organization can say, 'How come you missed this guy? Everybody else had him.' Or, 'Why do you like this kid when nobody else does?'

El Cerrito coach Larry Quirico, a full-time scout for the Cleveland Indians, says some scouts might be too scared of their jobs to take chances.

"Some of these guys have been scouting 10 years and don't have a guy in the majors yet. It worries them and might affect their judgment," said Quirico

Apparently the scouts know which kids will be brought up quickest and prefer to stay with the speedster stereotype. At least they can explain it easier if the guy busts. "Yeah, but he got down to first in zip-point-zoom seconds."

Oversights are occurring with position players, too. If they can't run like the wind, they won't get a chance to swing a bat professionally. Anyone interested in a diamond career had better get out the starting blocks and work on lowering their 40-yard dash time between grounders.

Even then, the scouting remains questionable at times The Chicago White Sox gave Contra Costa College infielder Timmy Wallace a tryout prior to the summer draft. Satisfied, the scout offered the former De Anza Don a pro contract on the spot.

Wallace deferred, asking to wait for the draft He wanted to see if he would go high enough to command a better financial offer. Wallace was passed over in the draft and will now attend San Francisco State to wait another year. Why wasn't a player worth a contract one week worth drafting the next week?

Nobody seems to have the answers, and deserving players like Comet pitcher Joe Strong do not have contracts.

Maybe somebody in baseball should scout the scouts

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

In whist and in auction bridge the honor bonuses were big enough to make it good policy to try hard to take advantage of them. In contract a 100- or 150-point bonus is not to be sneezed at, but at the same time it is not a large enough bonus to warrant insisting on playing a suit when no-trump is available.

South should have raised to the no-trump game instead of insisting on his five-card trump suit.

West opened and continued spades. East chucked the 10 of clubs on the second spade and completed the echo with the deuce on the third one, which South ruffed.

Now South started to pull trumps. East showed out on the second, and South saw that West was holding the same number of trumps that he held. It looked as if he was going to go down since the club finesse appeared to be a sure loser.

Then South found a way out of his troubles. He took his last two trumps to make the hand a no-trumper. On the last trump he chucked dummy's ace of clubs.

Then he took dummy's top diamonds and led the club jack. East could take his king or duck, but South's jack of diamonds had become the contract trick.

Horoscope

If you birthday is Wednesday, August 17:
Social momentum will accelerate considerably as the year rolls on. It is also very likely you'll play a prominent role in a new group involvement.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Unwarranted extravagances are no-nos but, by the same token, don't count pennies today and stop yourself from having a good time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Allow yourself ample time before making obligatory commitments today. Study situations thoroughly and you'll do what's best for everyone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Do not put limitations on your thinking today. In fact, the higher you raise your hopes the greater your chances are for success.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Try not to be overly influenced by the negative comments of associates today. You can be successful in situations where they may fall flat.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
You'll accomplish what you set out to do today, but not necessarily on your first try. Instead of quitting, exert a stronger second effort.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
In any commercial dealings today, don't jump at the first price. If you bargain a bit, you may get a hefty discount.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Partnership involvements could be rather tricky today. However, if you are tactful and diplomatic, all will work out well.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
In handling large issues today you'll conduct yourself so as to win the respect of others, but in trival situations you might not behave as well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Your social plans might be disrupted today, but don't let this upset you. Something much more exciting and fun could replace them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Family issues can be resolved today within the confines of your own household. Don't allow outsiders to stir up the waters.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Friends will be delighted to see you today, provided you don't drop in unexpectedly. Call first to be sure your visit doesn't disrupt their plans.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Your possibilities for personal gain look promising today, but you must be businesslike — even if you're dealing with pals.

LEGAL NOTICE A-127437
ORDINANCE NO. 83-04
AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF ALBANY AMENDING ARTICLE IV OF CHAPTER 22 OF THE ALBANY CITY CODE. RELATING TO ESTABLISHMENT OF A SANITARY SEWER SERVICE CHARGE.
THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF ALBANY DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:
SECTION 1: Sections 22.25 through 22.31 of the Albany City Code are hereby amended to read as follows:
Sec. 22.25 DEFINITIONS. The following terms, when used in this Article, shall have the following respective meanings:
1. "Sewer facilities" means and includes the sanitary sewage collection system owned and operated by the City and all appurtenances thereto, and all portions thereof.
2. "Person" shall mean and include any dwelling, unit, firm, association, organization, public corporation, political subdivision (including the City of Albany), county, district, State of California, or United States of America, or any department or agency thereof.
Sec. 22.26 IMPOSITION OF A SEWER SERVICE CHARGE FEE.
A. Authority to Impose Fee. The City of Albany shall charge a sewer service fee for all persons using the City of Albany sewer system. The fee to be charged shall be formulated by computing the average amount of water consumed per user in each activity that is identified in this ordinance. Where certain activities or users are identified as characteristically different users from the average classification, these activities will be charged separately and are identified as Exhibit "A" to this Ordinance.
B. Appeal. If a person feels that the charge is not an accurate enough reflection of his/her sewer use, the aggrieved party may request the City Administrator to review the service fee. If a satisfactory solution is not reached, an appeal to the City Council must be filed within ten (10) days of a written decision by the Administrative Officer.
C. Criteria for Setting Fees. Charges will be formulated by computing the average amount of water consumed per user in each activity. Adjustments may be made if it is determined that a least a twenty-five percent (25%) variation exists between actual use and the computed average. Further, if it is determined by proof presented by user that at least twenty-five percent of the water consumed does not flow into sewers because of consumption in manufacturing, irrigation, or removal by other means, the charge shall be based on the volume of water discharged from said premises into sewers.
In no case shall the total charge be less than Two Dollars and Fifty Cents ($2.50) per month, per billing account, unless exempted by Section 22.28.

Historic club slates tours

The best maintained and most representative of Julia Morgan's buildings in the East Bay, the Berkeley City Club, is a historical landmark and is listed in the National Registry of Historic Places.

Julia Morgan is best known as the architect of San Simeon, and the same European artisans helped construct the City Club which Morgan called her "Little Castle."

Completed in 1929, the Mediterranean style of the building reflects her Beaux Arts training. Built as a meeting place for civic women's groups, the Berkeley City Club was promoted and financed by women.

Tours will be open to the public on Sunday, August 28, from noon to 5 p.m.

Admission is $1.50 per person. For more information call 848-7800.

Football practice set

ALBANY — Any young man who will be attending Albany High School this fall and has not yet indicated that he wants to play football can still be a candidate for the team.

Call Coach Bob Hoyle at 525-0421. First practice is on Aug. 22 at 9:30 a.m. at Cougar Field.

PUBLIC NOTICE

LEGAL NOTICE A-127470
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
The governing board of Albany Unified School District will conduct a public hearing on their proposed Final Budget for 1983-84 in accordance with the provisions of Education Code Section 42103 at their regular meeting on September 6, 1983. The meeting is called to convene at 7:30 p.m., in Cornell School Multipurpose Room, 920 Talbot Avenue, Albany, CA. Any taxpayer directly affected by the Albany Unified School District budget may inspect the budget from August 25 to August 31, 1983, except Saturday and Sunday, anytime between 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. in the Administration Offices, 904 Talbot Avenue, Albany, CA., and may appear before the governing board at the public hearing and speak to the proposed budget or any item therein.
ROBERT C. CONEY,
Alameda County Superintendent of Schools

Assistant Superintendent
Order No. A-60327
A-183; August 17, 1983.

Tinkling the ivories

Robert Laughlin will teach two adult piano workshops at the Albany Senior Center on Sunday, Aug. 28, from 1 to 4 p.m. and on Monday, Aug. 29, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Anyone with a minimal music background can learn to play the piano by using chord symbols instead of by reading music. Interested persons interested should call 644-8500. The price is $15 for each workshop or $25 for both.

Time now to plant fall vegetables

Just because summer is coming to an end, it does not mean the end of the vegetable garden. There are many vegetables that can be planted and harvested this fall.

The cooler temperatures in fall will please what is known as "cool season" crops like lettuce. Sowing the loose leaf lettuce varieties now will probably give the best results. Try the head lettuces when the cooler weather arrives.

Even easier than lettuce are radishes. Just thin the seedlings to one inch apart and keep them well watered for a mild taste. Another root vegetable is carrots; plant the short, nearly maturing kinds and harvests should be ready in September.

Spinach and endive are two great salad additions. To improve the texture of the leaves and remove any bitter taste, blanche them prior to harvest. This is done by taping the outer leaves up in a bunch over the head to eliminate the penetration of sunlight.

Another tasty leaf vegetable is Swiss chard. Either the white or attractive redstemmed kind offer continual harvests if you don't defoliate the plant each time. You can also plant and enjoy beets this fall too.

Cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, turnips and onions are also on the list to plant at this time of the year. Be sure to provide all of them with enough water to give the plants a good start.

As temperatures cool this autumn and the rains begin, you'll be watering less frequently. Mulch to keep the roots cool and conserve moisture. Apply a liquid fertilizer to two inch seedlings to give them a boost and again in a few weeks.

When you're a really good, trusty Mechanic, people start coming to you.
